

A wide-angle photograph of a city skyline at sunset. The sun is low on the horizon, casting a warm, orange glow over the scene. The sky is filled with soft, wispy clouds. The city features several tall, modern skyscrapers. In the foreground, a wide, empty road stretches towards the horizon, flanked by sidewalks. The overall atmosphere is serene and dramatic.

OSHA Launches Workplace Program to Prevent Heat-Related Injuries

The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has launched a new program aimed at protecting workers from heat illness and injuries. Through the program, OSHA will conduct heat-related workplace inspections before workers suffer injuries, illnesses or, even worse, fatalities.

"Heat illness affects thousands of indoor and outdoor workers each year and can...

DHS Issues New Terrorism Advisory

The Department of Homeland Security this month issued a National Terrorism Advisory System (NTAS) Bulletin due to what it calls a "continued heightened threat environment" across the United States. This is the sixth NTAS Bulletin issued by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) since January 2021.

"As recent acts of violence in communities across the country have so tragically demonstrated, the nation remains in a heightened threat environment, and we expect..."

Homeland Security Information to Be Shared in New Mobile App

The Department of Homeland Security recently launched a new mobile application called DHS Intel to deliver and share intelligence information with law enforcement and first responders across the country.

"Today, many of us consume information from news feeds, blogs, social media, podcasts and a variety of other sources on our mobile phones; however, until last month, most intelligence information was either sent via e-mail distro lists or..."
